MONDAY AFTERNOON, OCT. 11.

ALL visible signs point to Keer as the coming speaker of the house of representatives, and his friends are encouraged to shout "Kerr-ect!"

TILTON is lecturing on "The Problem of Life." In his case it has been a materialized "47th of Euclid"—a glittering but rotten pons asinorum!

OLIVE LOGAN has fallen in love with the negro who waits upon her table at Long Branch. We don't know of any one to object to this, unless it is the nigger, since her man Sykes doesn't demur.

GRANT has been out to Colorado, but he wants to step down in Mississippi to see a brilliant color-ado, the predominating color being Brown, the negro sheriff of Coahoma!

AN officer of the ordnance department is in Nashville for the purpose of exchanging the Enfield rifles now in use in that state for breach-loading rifles. The companies that have the former are turning them in.

THERE must be some mistake in the report that the Cannon House, of this city, is to change proprietors. Mrs. Cannon, the present popular landlady, has renewed her lease of the hotel, and proposes to remain in charge. This will be gratifying to her numerous patrons and friends in the city and state.

THE Macon Telegraph urges the judges of the superior courts to give the farmers of the state a holiday during the state fair week. The holding of the courts at that time would seriously interfere with the attendance at the great exposition. Let the jurors, officers, parties and even the lawyers have an opportunity to attend our annual exhibition.

THE census of the state of New York is finished, and the population ascertained to be 4,916,604. The first census of the state was taken in 1698, when the population was 18,067. In the year 1800 the number of slaves in the state was 20,613. The gain of the past decade was twenty-eight per cent. against ten per cent during the preceding ten years.

THE Dahlonega Signal notes the passage through its town of numerous wagons loaded with cabbages, apples and other kinds of produce en route to Atlanta; and yet our stops are full of Illinois cabbages and western apples. This should not be, men of upper Georgia. You should reap the profits that now go to the western farmers and the railroad companies.

THE friends of Mr. Joseph Gaibord intended to bury him last Saturday, and they also proposed that he should rest quietly in his grave after he is once in it. Instead of strewing flowers upon his resting place, they proposed to strew torpedoes; instead of planting cypress and myrtle they intended to plant infernal machines. All these things were for the purpose of driving Joseph still deeper into the ground while they scattered those who would disturb his bones.

OHIO has no registry law, and colonization will probably be largely indulged in. The Cincinnati Enquirer says the repubcans are busily engaged importing negroes into the state from Kentucky. On one day of last week it is known that six car-loads of colored men were shipped over the Short Line railroad to Cincinnati. The national banks are pouring out their money like water, and every expedient will be resorted to, to carry the state for Hayes and contraction.

IT having been publicly announced that a fast train was to be run over the Georgia railroad to-morrow, to make the trip from Augusta to Atlanta, one hundred and seventy-one miles, in four hours, great interest has centered in the approaching event.

A private telegram from Colonel S. V. Johnson, the general superintendent, states that the trip has been postponed, as some of the officials will be absent on that day. But this failure to make the trip does not shake our confidence in the excellent and safe condition of the track and road bed on this line of travel, as it is universally acknowledged that Col. Johnson has his road in as fine condition as any in the whole country.

BETWEEN the negro troubles in Mississippi and the large amount of sickness that is now prevailing throughout west Tennessee and the best portion of the cotton belt there is some danger that a portion of the fine crop will be lost. The Memphis Appeal says:

> The fields are now white, and yet there are but few engaged in picking. We would not be surprised if one-third of the cotton which has been raised would be lost. It is a mistake to put the cotton crop at as high figures as many are placing it. These calculations will only do damage to the cotton growers, by creating the impression that the crop is much larger than it will turn out to be, thus causing it to sell for a lower price than it should. We hope the farmers will gather it as rapidly as possible before there is much rain upon it, as these rains in the fall destroy a great deal of it, and injure that which they do not destroy.

IT is a singular coincidence that two swindlers were arrested on Thursday last in sections of the country remote from each other, and for attempting the same game. One Henry S. Allen was arrested in Macon on that day for attempting to swindle the Merchants' National Bank out of $1,200 upon a forged letter of credit in his favor for $3,000, purporting to have been issued by the New York agents of the Bank of British North America. Allen had tried the game in Savannah the day before with the Savannah Bank and Trust Company, but had failed. On the same day Charles Daniels presented a similar letter of credit—same sum and bank—to the First National Bank of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and was as handily gobbled up as Allen. From appearances, there must be a gang of these swindlers abroad in the land, but they don't seem to get quite the kind of credit that their spurious letters call for!

SUICIDE OF J. T. HEARD.

Convicted of an Assault and Sentenced.

He Resolves on Death and Takes the Fatal Draught.

[Special to The Constitution.]

CONYERS, GA, October 10, 1875.

The great case of the State against Jas. T. Heard, charged with an assault with intent to rape has been tried and terminated most tragically and terribly, late Saturday night. The jury brought in a verdict of GUILTY OF AN ASSAULT.

He was then sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000, all costs, and six months in jail. Heard had been very all day Saturday, and although aware that his able counsel would use every effort to obtain a new trial, he made the remark that he could not live under the suspense. Some time after midnight he was

from his vest pocket and drop it into a glass of water. The bailiff in charge thought it was medicine, and paid no attention to it. In a short time it became evident that something was wrong with the prisoner, and aid was summoned, but with no avail. Speechless, and without leaving either explanation or message to his family, the miserable man lingered until 4 o'clock, Sunday morning, when

The intelligence of the suicide shocked the community not a little. Everybody wanted Heard punished, if guilty, and that question had been settled by the verdict of an impartial jury; but nobody felt any desire to have him suffer any other penalty than that prescribed by law. Thus ends one of the most shocking cases that ever excited this or any other community. X.

The firms of Geo. Reichenburg and Murrell & Co., cotton brokers, yesterday announced their inability to meet their engagement. Liabilities not stated.

Pennsylvania Mining Riots.

POTTSVILLE, PA., Oct. 10.—There was considerable shooting and breaches of the peace at Shenandoah last night, and at one time fears of riotous disturbances. Two men were shot—one slightly and the other severely wounded and throat cut. In attempting to make arrests the chief burgess, constable and police were frequently shot at, though without effect. One dispatch states that over one hundred shots were fired at the officers of the law, on the principal street, where the mob supposed the officers were. To-day there was much excitement, and the citizens generally anticipated another outbreak to night, and the deputy sheriff was compelled to issue a proclamation. This morning at Mahony City, there were a number of incendiary fires, two dwelling houses and three stables being burned to the ground. Three men were arrested for inciting riot. A later dispatch states that during to-day (Sunday) ten additional arrests were made for inciting riot and incendiarism. The farming districts east of Pottsville have for several months have been infested by bands of thieves, robbing farmhouses, barns and stores. At Orwigsburg, last night, two men were halted by an officer; they started to run, and were fired upon by the policeman, and one was wounded in the neck. He was captured in a shed, concealed. His confederate escaped.

New York Notes.

NEW YORK, October 10.—John Dolan, who was arrested for the murder of Mr. Noe, was brought before Justice Wandell, at the Washington place police court, to-day, for examination. The prisoner could not account for his possession of the murdered man's watch, but pleaded not guilty. He was held for trial without bail, to answer a charge of homicide.

The seventh anniversary of the proclamation of the independence of Cuba was celebrated to-day in the Cuban church of St. James, which was attended by a large congregation. The Rev. Dr. Joaquin de Palma preached an appropriate sermon, and dwelt at much length on the trials and struggles of the Cubans for their liberty.

Failure.

NEW YORK, October 10.—Wm. P. Robertson, flour and grain merchant, No. 10 Front street, has made an assignment of failure. It was the result of losses on heavy advances on grain.

Chief of the Choctaws.

CHAPTA TAMPA, CHOCTAW NATION, VIA CADDO, I. T., Oct 9.—His Excellency, Coleman Cale, governor of Choctaw nation, delivered his annual message to the national council in joint session today. He recommended the adaption of colored people, formerly held as slaves by Choctaws, and now living within the limits of the nation, giving them equal rights with the Choctaw citizens, except in regard to soil. In that they are allowed only 45 acres of land, each in accordance with the terms of the treaty of 1866. He recommends the placing of public schools entirely under the control of the national council, excluding children of white persons not citizens. He is opposed to the admission of any railroads of white men as merchants or miners, and hopes the people of the United States will let the Choctaws alone, to enjoy their rights in their own way. He says the crops are sufficient for the wants of the people, and much better than for years past.

Death at the Station House.

A stranger died at the station house this morning. He gave his name as J. D. Harlan. He will be buried this afternoon. Full particulars will be given in the morning.

SCHURZ mysteriously returned to St. Louis before his engagements in Ohio had been fully met. He probably saw that his friends would get bloody noses to-morrow and was not in favor of "bloody Schurz" in the campaign!

BUSY SATURDAY.

What a busy day for little May Every Saturday is!
There's so much to do, enough for two,
And how she ever can get through
Is one of the mysteries.

You'd think she'd desire some help to hire,
But times are hard, you know,
And she hardly knows how to get the clothes
For her dollies, Lou and Rose—
Her bank funds are so low.

The washing comes first, and that's the worst—
The clothes for Rose and Lou;
She puts them in tubs, and hard she rubs,
And with her little fist she scrubs
Till she thinks that they will do.

Then she ties a line of stoutest twine
From the door nob to the chair;
Then quickly wrings the tiny things,
And in a little basket brings,
And hangs them up with care.

Now, while they dry, her hands must fly,
And busy her feet must be;
First she must make some rolls and cake,
And put them in her stove to bake,
For company's coming to tea.

And then in haste, no time to waste,
Her children's beds she makes;
Then she must see that the dishes for tea
Are washed as clean as they can be.
And with these great pains she takes.

Now her clothes are dry, and she must try
To iron them very soon;
For there's sweeping to do, and mending, too,
And then her children, Rose and Lou,
She must dress for afternoon.

Should you not think that she would sink
With so much work to do?
But, strange to say, thoughout the day,
Many an hour she'll find to play,
And help her mamma, too.

[St. Nicholas for October.

MYSTERIES OF THE TOILET.

How a French Woman Makes Herself Beautiful—Passing for Thirty at Fifty.

From the Metropolitan.

I had the pleasure yesterday of "assisting"—that is to say, looking on, not helping—at the toilet of a French woman, a genuine Parisian. I was a good deal surprised, that I admit; and she was a good deal surprised at my surprise. She imagined that the extremes of artificiality arrived at in Paris—making a sort of dual woman, as it were but of one—were known to us; and she considers us semi-barbarians since she discovered how much nearer the natural state we are.

She began, my Francaise, by submitting herself to her maid, who on her part began by subjecting her to a face friction of elder flower water. This accomplished, the previously sallow face became of a clearer hue, an ivory yellow. Every particle of impurity in the pores had yielded to the influence of the elder water, with which half a goblet of warm water had been mixed. The throat, neck, and hands partook of this refreshing dew, adding a lustre to the freshness given by a tepid bath of twenty minutes and a shower bath of five, gone through with a half hour before the beginning of the mysteries of dressing, or the "getting up."

Next came a rubbing on a scented iris-powder in the dark hair, which was short—that is to say, no more than a foot and a half long—and rather thick. When the iris-powder was brushed out and carefully removed at the temples and the nape of the neck, a delicate creme, similar to cold-cream, but without lard—the juice of lettuce being its main ingredient—was laid over the whole skin of neck, face and hands, and allowed to do away with the contraction of the features arising from the want of sleep, which want of sleep had risen from too much cafe noir at dinner. I had not observed any "contraction des traits," and thought within myself how much fancy would do. The Parisian informed me that camphor and creme had a similiar composing effect upon the features, especially after the fatigues of a ball.

The next thing done was the removal of every trace of the creme with an extremely fine linen cloth. This was a skilful operation, for while rubbing the skin into satin like smoothness the femme de-chambre did not make it red or in any way roughen its surface. She seemed to polish and in polishing to whiten her mistress's complexion.

The next process was the application of veloutine, a compound of bismuth and rice powder, having the fixative quality of the first and the delicacy of the last ingredient. But ah! the care with which the maid applied the preparation. It was absolutely impossible, in being thus laid on, to detect the presence of any foreign aid. The skin had the firm, clear whiteness of alabaster, with a suggestion of sunny lustre and creaminess to subdue it.

Then came the grand affair of the eyebrows. These were brushed with a minute soft brush, with dark bristles and a handle inlaid with mother-of-pearl, and the least possible tracing of fard indien from a small stone jar laid upon them.

Under the eyes—very fine eyes, and needing no aid from art—an estampe of leather, upon which the fard indien was lightly rubbed, laid now a dusky shadow which increased the brilliancy of the eyes to a great, and, to my mind, unpleasant degree. What was to become of this appliance in case of emotion I cannot say. Perhaps a French woman only cries when she choses.

The neck and hands now partook of the bismuth powder whitening, and after that the hair was dressed very low on the neck, frizzled a little over the forehead, and with less addition of false hair than has been customary for years. A small natte of permanently crimpled black hair, looped with a white ivory comb cut in cameo medallions, made up this part of the toilet, only one small ringlet being suffered to play about the neck.

But it was when the large peignoir was removed, and the under toilet began, that astonishment claimed me for its own.

First, a corset, of course, you will say. But, let me remark, there are corsets and corsets. The one placed above the delicate garment of flesh-colored raw silk, which takes the place of linen with the elegantes of Paris, and clings to the form so as in no way to increase the size by bulk of folds around the waist, was a corset of gray silk, stitched with rose color and edged with Valenciennes on the hips and about the shoulders. But in the make of this "article of female wear" there entered art that amounted to genius. For, set in at the hips and [illegible] bustle, were curved bones tha[illegible] in a swell of several inches and [illegible] an incorporate part of the corse[illegible], impossible of detection when the skirt of the dress was placed over it.

Then the flesh-colored silk stockings; the short cambric skirt with myriad tucks, insertions, and flutings of face; the delicate bottines of black satin; the white muslin dress, without assistance of color except a rose at the thraot, and made so extremely short in front as to display the entire foot; the one long hair pin, with its head une grosse perle fine, and the careless drawing up of the draping at one side to display the underskirt of raw silk; this and the toilet were an accomplished feat and fact.

Let me not omit to say that the muslin sleeve was so extremely tight to the arm that it seemed like a second skin. It terminated two inches above the well-rounded yet delicate wrist, where a quaint bracelet of West Indian beetles, the cadeau of a lady admirer from Buba, completed the ornamentation of so much studied simplicity.

It was really very pretty, and the lady looked charming—let us say thirty years old. Her age? Oh—well, fifty.

TRUTH STRANGER THAN FICTION.

Death in the Bridal Chamber—A Thrilling War Incident.

SCENE, CHARLESTON—Time, April 23, 61

The yankees from time to time, threw a shell into the city, and nobody seemed to mind it. But misfortune willed that yesterday a shell should throw the entire community into mourning.

Miss Anna Pickens, the daughter of one of our former governors, never consented to leave the city. Despite the representation of General Beauregard she remained, braving shells and Greek fire, tending the wounded and cheering all with her presence. Among the wounded officers under her care was Mr. Andrew de Rochelle, a descendant of one of the noblest Huguenots of this city. This young man was full of the liveliest gratitude for his fair nurse; gratitude gave birth to a more tender sentiment; his suit was listened to; Governor Pickens gave his consent, and the marriage was fixed for the 23d April. Lieutenant De Rochelle was on duty at Fort Sumter in the morning and it was determined that the ceremony should take place at the residence of General Bonham, at 7 o'clock. At the moment when the Episcopal clergyman was asking the bride, if she was ready, a shell fell upon the roof of the building, penetrated to the room where the company was assembled, burst and wounded nine persons, among them Miss Anna Pickens. The scene that followed cannot be described; order being at last re-established, the wounded were removed with the exception of the bride, who lay motionless on the carpet. Her betrothed, leaning and bending over her, was weeping bitterly and trying to staunch the blood that flowed from her terrible wound under her left breast. A surgeon came and declared that Miss Pickens could live but two hours. We will paint the general despair. When the wounded girl recovered her consciousness she asked to know her fate, when they hesitated to tell her, "Andrew," she said, "I beg you to tell me the truth; if I must die, I can die worthy of you." The young soldier's tears were his answer, and Miss Anna, summoning all her strength, attempted to smile. Nothing could be more heart-rending than to see the agony of this brave girl struggling in the embrace of death and against a terrible mortal pain. Governor Pickens, whose courage is known, was almost without consciousness, and Mrs. Pickens looked upon her child with the dry haggard eye of one whose reason totters.

Lieut. de Rochelle was the first to speak. Anna, he cried, I will die soon too, but I would have you now die my wife. There is yet time to unite us.

The young girl did not reply. She was too weak. A slight flush rose for an instant to her pale cheek; it could be seen that joy and pain were struggling in her spirit for the mastery. Lying upon a sofa, her bridal dress all stained with blood, her hair disheveled, she had never been more beautiful. Helpless as she was Lieut. De Rochelle took her hand and requested the Rev. Dr. Dickinson to proceed with the ceremony. When it was time for the dying girl to say yes, her lips parted several times, but she could not articulate. At last the word was spoken and a slight foam rested upon her lips. The dying agony was near. The minister sobbed as he proceeded with the ceremony. An hour afterwards all was over, and the bridal chamber was the chamber of death.

Summary of State News.

AUGUSTA.

—Ten shares of Georgia railroad stock sold for $75 per share.

—Mrs. Mary Rhodes, mother of Mr. Thos. R. Rhodes, of this city, died at her son's residence yesterday morning, at the advanced age of 87 years and one month. She was born in Union District, South Carolina, September 7th, 1778, and resided in Augusta 83 years.—Chronicle & Sentinel.

—A. V. Sprading, the vendor of patent medicines, who fell out of a wagon two weeks since, died at the hospital on Friday night, and has been buried in the poor house lot.

—The building business is not very brisk. A new dwelling is projected on Broad street to cost $10,000 and another on Greene street to cost about $5,000.—Constitutionalist.

COLUMBUS.

—Col. Whidby is a noted ladies' man. He is now writing a romance, called "Dove-eyed Susan, or the Enchantress of the Valley," which is said to embody a series of his own experiences. It is to be published by the Hamilton Visitor press.

—The Atlanta Constitution's big Okefenokee exploring expedition will set out about the first of November. Plenty of fun and danger and toil will probably fall to the lot of all who go into that dismal and unknown swamp.—[Times.

MACON.

—Mr. H. P. Mathis, of Stockton, Georgia, will exhibit two bears and an alligator from the Okefenokee swamp, at the state fair.

—Master David Farmer, of this city, is the owner of a magnificent collection of eggs, numbering several hundred, and including every size, from the humming-bird's to the ostrich's. There are two ostrich eggs in the collection, two alligator eggs, turtle eggs, and a large variety of birds' eggs, some of which are very rare in this section.—Telegraph.

Salaries of Big Actors.

Booth's terms are $500 a night, and he is engaged to play at the Fifth Avenue Theatre during the present season. Jarrett & Palmer desire him to play for them, and have offered $600 a night, but he has a very natural dislike to appearing amid the scenes of his former triumphs and his eventual ruin. The associations of such a spot would be too painful. It is sixty years since he opened that theatre, with high expectation of success, and during this time he exerted every facility to sustain the institution. At last he bade it farewell amid general ruin, and he does not care to revisit it.

Barry Sullivan, as a star, receives 40 per cent. of the house—such at least, is the report—but it is probable that the terms are over-stated, in order to give him eclat. He is a very clever actor, but will not achieve any grand success. The Irish do well in comic performances, and if Barry Sullivan convinces the American people that he is a tragedian, he will be the first of a countrymen that has done so. Davenport, as a star of Shaksperian dignity, is worth $500 a week. First-class comedians are rated at from $175 to $250 a week. Jas. Lewis receives the first mentioned price, except under extraordinary circumstances. From this rate the salaries decline until they reach $15 to $20 per week for stage walkers.

Ever since the panic of 1873 the dramatic profession has been under a severe pressure. All last year Daly engaged first class comedians at half-price. Here was the attractive Miss Davenport, whose usual terms are $200 a week, doing her best for just half that sum. Here, too, was William Davidge, whose figure is $150 a week, accepting $75. Other names could have been mentioned on Daly's list at equal reduction, and yet with all this abatement he lost heavily. He is now making a fresh effort to retrieve himself, and may do so as the season advances, but at present the prospects are very discouraging. The dramatic profession is idle much of the time, and hence its members suffer severely. Having been earning nothing during the summer, they are now anxious to improve the season.

GEORGE WILKES, editor-in-chief of the Spirit of the Times, retires from that position Nov. 1, and will be succeeded by E. A. Buck, a Cincinnati man.

Opium.

OPIUM Habit Cured

The Wonder

— OF THE —

NINETEENTH CENTURY.

ALMOST EVERYBODY KNOWS that an Antidote to Opium has been discovered, and that notwithstanding the scores of antidotes, so-called, that have been thrown on the market, Dr. S. B. Collins, of LaPorte, Indiana, was the real discoverer.

The undisputed date of the Doctor's discovery is July 1868, and for a long time thereafter he was the only man who represented himself as being able to even mitigate the horrors of the terrible disease

Looked upon at first as at best a desperate experiment, it is to-day conceded to be exactly what it is represented to be, Painless, Permanent and Infallible Remedy for the Opium Habit.

Out of the large number of unsolicited testimonials we select the following:

ALBION, NEW YORK, July 8th, 1875.

Dr. S. B. COLLINS, LaPorte, Ind.:

Dear Sir—Several weeks have elapsed since I took the last dose of your Priceless Antidote to the Opium Habit.

To you and to God I owe my restoration to health and happiness once more, and I know if I had followed your directions more perfectly I should have been well long ago. I felt some nervousness for a night or two, but now I rest sweetly all night.

For twelve years I was a slave to the terrible habit of Morphine Eating, but thank God I am free once more, and I shall praise God through all eternity that I ever saw one of your circulars.

I would recommend all slaves of Opium in any form to try the Doctor's Antidote. It will cure you if you follow the directions carefully.

Make what use of this you choose, and send me a Magazine once in a while.

MRS. M. M. SMITH.

PORTSMOUTH, VA., Sept. 16th, 1875.

DR. S. B. COLLINS:

Sir—It affords me great pleasure in recommending your invaluable medicine to the public as an Opium Antidote, for as such it has more than proved itself in my case.

I am confident that had I taken Morphine two weeks longer I could not have survived its effects, for it had almost entirely destroyed my strength of mind and body, but by the hand of Providence I was led to try your Antidote.

I first obtained one bottle on trial and from the first dose I have been feeling better, and I therefore continued the use of it until I am now enabled to say that I am released from the Opium Habit, as well as from the use of the Antidote.

It effected the cure in about eight months, taking in all nine and a half bottles, and from the first bottle I took I have been improving in health and strength, so that I am now enabled to say that I am feeling better, am stronger and weigh more than for the last three years of my sickness.

I would have written you sooner, for I stopped the Antidote about four months ago, but have been waiting to be sure that my cure was permanent, of which I am now confident.

Hoping that all your patients may meet with the same success as myself, and that you and your medicine may prosper as before, I remain truly yours,

C. H. WILLIAMS.

THERIAKI, a quarterly Magazine of nearly one hundred pages, is sent free to any address.

THE WONDER OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

A Man Eighty-nine Years of Age Painlessly Cured of the Opium Habit.

DR. S. B. COLLINS' PAINLESS OPIUM ANTIDOTE.

The fact that Dr. Collins could painlessly cure the opium habit has long since become a settled thing in the minds of the observing and well read persons.

The testimonials produced by the doctor are very numerous and we positively know that each and every one are bona fide and that each truth of every one could be substantiated under oath.

Having known Dr. Collins for a long series of years, the editor of this paper gladly testifies to the fact Dr. Collins' ability to perform all that he promises.

Place is given for one testimonial out of the many we have on file, showing that a person, though beyond the age of three score years and ten, can find in the antidote of Dr. Collins a sure relief and a speedy cure. But here is the letter:

WEST ENOSBURGH, VT., May 25, 1875.

Dr. S. B. Collins, La Porte. Ind.:

Dear Sir—I had in contemplation to write to you how I was getting along and to do this I must begin away back. I was taken sick about three years ago and I was taken very violently, and the doctors gave me ether and something else, in the expectation that I would not live long. But I continued to live on, and they thought I had the heart disease, and they fed me with, (I don't know about ether,) and morphine about a month, four doses per twenty-four hours. They then thought I was not going to die yet, and they put me on to one dose of morphine per twenty-four hours, and this I followed for about two years. When I was without they gave me some more. I had, before this, lost my appetite and most of my flesh. I used to weigh one hundred and eighty-four pounds; I now weigh one hundred and fifteen, and I found I could not live without morphine. The desire was greater than my resolution, and I thought I might as well have it and die—so I commenced buying it bo the bottle to save expense. And I practiced in this way for one year. At this time I began to think that I might recover and live yet many years. My constitution did not seem much impaired but the thought that I must use morphine always or suffer the horror of going without was very trying and painful. I could not eat because I loved it, and every expedient was resorted to to get something that I could eat. My neighbors were very kind to send me something.

About this time I read in a newspaper that Dr. Collins, of Indiana, had an Antidote that was painless, and a sure cure if directions were followed, and it was witnessed by seeming good authority.

I sat down and wrote to him, making some inquiries, but not sending for medicine, and he answered me very promptly, and urgently pressed me take courage and try it.

I was then EIGHTY-SIX years old, and I thought it would hardly pay, and my finances were small—but I concluded to try it. So I sent for a bottle and it came in good order.

My neighbors thought it a humbug, and I feared it was no better. But I commenced taking it, 1 teaspoonful at a dose and after taking the first dose I had no more desire for morphine. It is now about three months since I began to take the Antidote, and I don't seem to want either morphine or the antidote—but I am not as well as I sick, and I am three years older. And I have some Antidote left and I take some every day, not because I feel the want of it, but because I have it.

I have gained in flesh from 115 to 147 1-2 pounds, and my appetite is good—I fear a little too good.

And Dr. Collins' Antidote has done this, for I have taken nothing else. And I can recommend his antidote to anybody that wants to be cured, as an infallible remedy if directions are followed.

I have found Dr. Collins a sympathizing friend, and faithful and honest, and he seems anxious to do a person good.

N. B.—You are at liberty to correct my diction if you don't alter my meaning. I am old and old fashioned.

I am truly and affectionately yours,
LORENZO FASSETT.

It is useless to say that the old gentleman's diction has not been altered. Good old fashioned men, and good old fashioned letters being fully as the younger men and sprucer letters of these latter days.

"No ballots, no babies!" was the motto on a transparency at a late woman's rights meeting out west. If this had happened in Mississippi, observes a northern contemporary, Ames would have asked for United States troops.

THE Milwaukee Sentinel remarks that "times will continue hard as long as the $2,000 a year man strives to appear as a $10,000 a year man." Yes; and as long too as high officials are paid from $20,000 to $50,000 per year for doing about fifteen cents worth of work.—Albany Argus.

"IT is rather significant," says the Boston Post, "that Charles Nordhoff should, after showing Georgia to be the most prosperous and quiet state in the south, commence his concluding article by saying that there is no republican party worthy of the name in that State."

"I THANK you, Mr. Randolph, for voting for me." "And who are you, sir?" "Why, the candidate for whom you have just cast your vote." "Oh, sir; I never thought of you when voting, and did not vote for you; I voted for my party," was the scathing and patriotic rejoinder which cut off all further debate.

COL. P. DONAN, a writer of the most splendid phraseology in America, lately editor of the Caucasian, is hereafter to conduct the Sentinel of Raleigh, North Carolina. We add, for the information of those young ladies of North Carolina who may not know him, that the colonel is one of the finest-looking fellows they ever saw.

GEORGIA'S bonds rate high in New York. The people of that state did not hesitate to throw out every dollar of illegally made debt saddled on them years ago by the plunderers then in power. But we are told that if Tennessee should adopt the same course our state credit will be gone. Let us take the chances.—Memphis Avalanche.

Two amendments to the constitution of Connecticut were voted for and adopted at the late election in that state. The first provided for annual elections on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November in each year, commencing in November, 1876; for sessions of the general assembly annual in January, and for state officers biennially. The second confers on the general assembly the power to restore forfeited electoral privileges.

THE territory of New Mexico can be called the "territory of Elkins" no longer, as Pedro Valdez, democrat, has been elected delegate to congress over S. B. Elkins, republican, by 1,70-. In 1874 Elkins, republican, defeated Gallegos, democrat, by 3,818—a republican split having, in 1871, let in a democrat by a plurality of 2,381, though he was in a minority of 153 when his vote was compared with the total republican strength.

AT one of his recent meetings in Mississippi, Mr. Lamar's attention was called to a statement made by a republican candidate for congress, that the success of the democrats in this election would mean the reenslavement of the colored people. Mr. Lamar turned to the audience, and asked those white democrats present who honestly accepted the situation, and would take up arms, if necessary, in defence of the freedom of their colored neighbors and fellow-citizens, to say "aye." The response was instant and deafening.

JEFFERSON DAVIS has received a great number of invitations to deliver addresses at the different agricultural associations during the last month or two, but the most significant invitation the ex president has yet received is the one extended to him by the colored agricultural fair now being held near the city of Clarksville, Tennessee. Mr. Davis expressed his regrets that previous engagements would prevent him from accepting the invitation. We wonder what the Inter-Ocean and Cincinnati Gazette will have to say about this treasonable conduct on the part of the colored people of Tennessee.

IN Kentucky the contest for the United States senatorship will soon present formidable proportions. The most conspicuous aspirants now in the field are Hon. James B. Beck, General Williams, Senator Stevenson, and ex-Governor Leslie. It is understood that each of these gentlemen is organizing for the contest. In addition to them, the names of Hon. Isaac Caldwell, Hon. Stoddard Johnston, General Preston and Colonel W. C. Preston are mentioned as furnishing material for the senatorship, in the event that no one of the first named distinguished gentlemen can win the prize. All of these men are able and accomplished democratic leaders.

IT looks as if the eloquent ex-Senator Harlan had been sold out in Iowa. If there has not been a general bargaining between the democrats and republicans, whereby the former are to give the republicans the governor in return for a democratic legislature, then appearances are very deceptive. The republican journals openly say the democrats have the best chances of securing the legislature, and some of them go so far as to commend the democratic candidates. With a democratic legislature, how is Mr. Harlan to be re-elected to the United States senate? This harrowing conundrum makes the great man unusually solemn as he hurls forth his thunder from the stump.—New York Tribune.

AFTER the collapse of the southern confederacy three or four hundred southerners, unwilling to live under the government of the United States, went to Brazil, where they intended permanently to reside. They were, however, disappointed in their hopes, and soon expressed a desire to return to their native land, many of them being in actual distress. Our government tendered to them free passage on board of naval vessels, and 24 of them returned to New York in 1871. Since that time others have reached this country by the same means, and now the United States steamer Swatara will soon sail for Para, in Brazil, to bring to this country the remainder, and will land them at Port Royal, S. C.—Nashville American.

MR. JULIUS L. BROWN has been appointed to be Master in Chancery for the Federal Circuit court. This is certainly very complimentary.

A QUEER ARGUMENT.

The Augusta Chronicle declines to discuss the two-thirds rule any further than to declare that its abrogation at the coming gubernatorial convention would lead to a dissolution. Adopt the majority rule, says the Chronicle, and the convention will be broken up without fulfilling its mission. That is a very poor kind of argument at the best. Such a threat or statement should at least be specific. The party will certainly not accept it as conclusive unless they can see that it is well founded. What is the basis of the statement? What lot of delegates would bolt the fair action of the party in pursuance of a custom that is hoary with age and in accordance the spirit of our institutions? Under what circumstances would they bolt? Out with it; let us know the worst at once. The Chronicle has declared that there are democrats in Georgia who would disregard their party obligations unless they could dictate just what course shall be pursued, and we want to know who they are. If the basis of its general statement, of its singular declaration, cannot be made plain, it cannot reasonably expect the party to be governed by it. An unsupported threat is no argument. It is but a bid for demoralization and weakness. Let us have harmony under any and all circumstances. The democracy of Georgia can be trusted under the operations of a majority vote, or of the anomalous two-thirds rule, or of any other rule that they may adopt.

THE Washington Chronicle has faith, after its own peculiar fashion, in Upper Georgia. Here is a handsome paragraph from its editorial columns:

Twenty miles above Atlanta, and almost under the shadow of Kennesaw, is the lovely town of Marietta, the county seat of Cobb, in Georgia. This has become a famous resort for northern people. They are contented with living there. Enough have gone to Marietta to make a society of their own. This, however, they do not desire to do, exclusively, as the native population are of the right kind and very agreeable. Marietta is now building a railroad, called the North Georgia, north and east to Canton and Murphy. The sum of two thousand dollars has just been raised to build the company's shops, and Fannin county has has subscribed $12,000 in stocks. When $21,000 more shall have been expended, the road will be prepared for the iron, which, upon certain conditions, parties are ready to furnish. North Georgia cannot be held back. She will go ahead rapidly. There is too much directly on hand worth developing, not to have it done, and there are too many northern people there to be quiet. We'll bet on Atlanta, Marietta, Rome, Cartersville, etc.

THE Columbus Enquirer insists that the Alabama constitutional convention disposed of the secession question very properly and cleverly. We give its conclusions:

We believe the declaration to be true as well as politic. Whether the abstract constitutional right of secession is reserved to the states or not, there is no probability that a disruption of the union will be attempted in that way again. If the people of any party or any section become convinced that they are not treated fairly and as equals in the union, and if they have the strength to make a fight for what they believe to be their rights, they will hereafter make that fight in the union. No matter what the constitutional theory may be, it has been demonstrated that the love of the union is too strong for any section, fighting even in a just cause, to obtain redress by its disruption. Parties and sections will hereafter settle their difficulties in some other way—by the ballot box alone, we hope, but certainly not by asserting the right of secession. Besides, it has been shone that in the process of "reconstruction" after a conflict, many things can be done "outside of the constitution," and which would not be thought of before the conflict. If ever a separation of the states composing the union occurs (and we hope there may never be a necessity for it), it will be by a treaty of peace concluded between exhausted belligerent sections, each contending for mastery in the union, and not by a movement having secession for its original object.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION says to those who are trusting to the liberality of the government for compensation for fast trains, that this must not be tried on "until a fast line is run to New Orleans as a partial offset to the two parallel lines between the northeast and the northwest." As the Atlanta journals are in a position where the situation can be commanded, i. e., where they can alarm and control the vote in the House, which can send up, or send down, all appropriations, we hope they will use their power judiciously, and secure a fast mail from Washington to New Orleans, by way of Atlanta, as indicated in our columns some time back. The thing can be, and in justice to the south, should be done.—[Washington Chronicle.

We hope the Virginia, Alabama and New Orleans papers will promote this just demand. A member from any of these states who votes to tax his constituents to furnish parallel fast mail trains for the north, without demanding at least a partial equivalent for his own people, must be a slack wad indeed. We do not want that kind of a representative.

WE neglected to mention the compliment that the trustees of the Peabody fund paid to Georgia when they elected her distinguished son, Hon. Henry R. Jackson, of Savannah, a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Gov. Graham. We hope Gen. Jackson will find it convenient to accept the honorable distinction, for he thoroughly understands the educational wants of the south, and will see that Mr. Peabody's money is rightly placed each year. The next annual meeting of the board will be held at the White Sulphur Springs, on the first Wednesday in August, 1876.

THE remains of Joseph Guibord will not be buried until next week, and perhaps not then, although it is decided that the cortege will be escorted to the cemetery by the militia. It is now said that very heavy stones are to be set in the grave in the form of a box, that the coffin is to placed in this stone box, and that the box will then be covered with a massive stone, so sealed to it that it can not be removed.

THE Baptists of the state have wisely organized a fund to provide for the aged and needy members of their ministry. The trustees of the fund appeal for money to the Baptist brotherhood throughout the state in behalf of the venerable men who are widely scattered, and whose names are household words. Contributions should be addressed to Jas. T. Davis, treasurer, Eatonton, Ga.

THE radicals of Alabama have fully decided to oppose the ratification of the new constitution. This makes it incumbent on the democracy of that state to thoroughly organize for a hard fight. Let all resolve that the new constitution shall be made the supreme law, even if some of its provisions do not exactly suit. No instrument could meet all views.

UP to the 9th inst., Selma had received 15,203 bales of cotton against 10,887 bales in the corresponding period of the previous year. Cotton is coming forward rapidly, and every year will add to the facilities for throwing a crop quickly into market.

THE famous "Hegeman folding boat" for THE CONSTITUTION expedition to Okefenokee will reach Georgia in a few days.

Horse Disease.

ENGLAND'S SWIMMING GIRL.

Ten Miles and a Quarter in Two Hours and Twenty-five Minutes.

Five Thousand Spectators at London Bridge and Five Thousand More at the Woolwich Gardens—A Lively Afternoon on the Thames.

[Cor. N. Y. Sun.]

LONDON, Sept. 21.

Miss Emily Parker's swimming feat in the Thames on the 4th inst., created an enthusiasm among the professional swimmers of London that led them to have a gold medal made in the form of a Maltese cross, at an expense of $52, to be presented to her in Woolwich gardens on Saturday, the 13th inst. On receiving the message, Miss Parker turned to her brother and said:

"Harry, shall I go?"

"Certainly," said her brother; "go, by all means."

"Then I'll swim down," said she; "its only ten miles and a quarter, and I know I can swim it."

As the ebb tide was just commencing its backward trip to the sea on the 18th inst. I reached London bridge and found on it over fine thousand persons, anxiously awaiting the start. Promptly at five o'clock p. m. a little boat, in the hands of experienced oarsmen, shot under the bridge, and at three minutes past five little Emily threw off a loose mantle, and in a closely fitting costume of fine wool, trimmed with silk, plunged into the current. I was favored with an invitation to become a member of the family party that accompanied her. In the bow of the boat stood an experienced waterman, who was familiar with the tides, eddies and currents. Behind him stood the vigilant and athletic Harry Parker, his black frock coat emblazoned right and left with a score or more of gold and silver medals that he had won by swimming. In the centre sat H. D. Morgan, Esq., secretary of the Atlantic swimming club, who was time keeper; and in the stern sat a sister of Miss Parker and myself.

MISSE MILY PARKER

was fourteen years of age on the 22d day of February, 1875. She is of about the usual height of girls of her age, but in plumpness she rivals the fairest of Berks county, Pa., girls, for she weighs 140 pounds. She has a light complexion, her eyes are a light blue, and her hair, a light brown, she fastens up at the back part of her head in a little coquettish knot, while the ends hang down in natural ringlets. Her nose is slightly Roman, her lips sweetly expressive and childlike, and the general expression of her face is that of amiability and innocence.

In swimming she makes the "breast stroke," putting the palms close together as far out in front as she can reach, and then turning the palms out and drawing the hands back as far as the hips. She is the only human being that I ever saw swim without any apparent effort. She uses no oil or any other medicinal mixture on her body, but trusts wholly to her own adipose matter to keep her warm in the water. Captain Webb used porpoise oil when he crossed the English channel.

Between twenty and thirty boats filled with delighted and shouting spectators followed, preceded and surrounded Miss Parker during the trip. The splashing of oars and the rocking of boats frequently created such commotion in the water that large, dirty breakers sometimes broke over her head and hid her entirely from view. She always came up with a smile, however, and sometimes with a playful word or two about the Thames at high tide not being the best water for washing a girl's face. We were frequently met or overtaken by steamers, and the passengers waved their hats and handkerchiefs and greeted the fair swimmer with cheers, in reply to which she gracefully kissed her hand to the multitude and bent anew to the task before her.

Her sister in our boat frequently asked her whether she was cold, and the reply invariably was that she was as "lively as a cricket."

ONE FLASK OF WINE.

When we started from London bridge, a large, muscular, but spare fleshed man took to the water. At the expiration of one hour we had made four and one-half miles. The man had kept up in the race, but his face and neck were blue and his teeth chattered with cold. Miss Parker's sister here exclaimed:

"Emily, I know you must be cold! Let me give you a glass of port wine."

Emily looked back over her shoulders at the stalwart swimmer in the rear, and replied:

"No, I thank you, I don't wish any wine, but do, I beg of you, give some to that poor man in the water; he is suffering!"

The flask was handed to the shivering swimmer, and he gallantly drank the last drop! A few minutes afterward he was lifted into one of the boats completely exhausted.

At the expiration of one hour and three quarters we had made 7½ miles, and at 7 o'clock and 28 minutes—making the entire time two hours and twenty-five minutes for the 10¼ miles—Miss Parker stood in two feet of water at Woolwich gardens. I personally helped to lift her into the boat, and can testify that she seemed entirely free from cold chills, and that her swimming costume was of the thinnest material, without rubber, cork, or other inflation.

TAKING DOWN HIS FEATHERS.

While Miss Parker was swimming her last mile, "a gentleman amateur," who desired to exhibit his aquatic skill, donned appropriate costume, plunged into the water and took the lead with apparent ease. The girl was evidently too tired for great speed, and I noticed that the man's skill, freshness and impudence combined annoyed her. After about five minutes, she turned her mischievous eyes up to her brother and said:

"Harry! that man is trying to show himself. Do jump into the water and take down a few of his feathers."

Throwing off his jewelled coat, Harry instantly appeared in complete swimming costume. He plunged in, and taking what is here called the "overhand" or "Johnson stroke," he rose, shot and skipped through the water like a playful porpoise. Within two minutes, he was to the right, to the left, under, behind, and in front of youth who was exhibiting himself; and with eyes starting from their sockets, the amateur screamed to his friends:

"For God's sake, help me into the boat!"

Mr. Parker, who is about 24 years, is the winner of over 100 prizes, and has swam the quickest 500 yards on record.

Something to Think of.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

The republican papers, in their articles on contraction, take no notice of the fact that in 1865 eleven states that had no greenbacks during the war suddenly, upon its termination, desired and received many hundreds of millions of dollars. This of itself was an immense and violent contraction. The money in circulation had been in twenty-six states. It was called upon to fulfill the functions of thirty-seven. The additional eleven not only took their share, but more than their share of the currency. They were destitute of everything. Their railroads were used up, rolling stock destroyed. Their bridges of all kinds were burned, fences and barns were gone, houses destroyed. Everything required replacement. This could not be done without ready money. It was furnished by the north upon real estate and other security. The contraction of the currency produced by this was immense. It caused a shrinkage of all kinds of values. It added largely to the debtors' obligations. It greatly increased the profits of the creditors. While the accession of the south to the greenback circulation imperatively demanded a large addition to the circulating medium, that was the time chosen by the republicans for a decrease from $2,192,000,000 to probably less than $600,000,000. In all discussions about contraction the republican papers and speakers pass over this addition of the southern states without notice.

The North Carolina Convention.

RALEIGH, N. C., October 11.—The state convention adjourned sine die, after a session of 31 working days. In the last few days of the session, many important ordinances were passed, amounting to general emancipation of the legislature from the restrictions under which it has labored since 1868, and giving it larger powers. The public debt question was not interfered with, several ineffectual attempts being made made to repudiate the special tax bonds.

Murders and Riots.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Three additional arrests have been made in the case of the murder of James H. Noe—a man who was with Dolan, the alleged murderer, on the day of the tragedy, a woman with whom he had been the night before, and a man who had been in his company after the murder. The woman confessed that Dolan and his associate from Westchester quit her on that Sunday morning at four o'clock, and that Dolan wore the light grey coat so accurately described by Mr. Noe. He returned at half past nine with his coat collar turned up, his face scratched and bleeding, his shirt front bedaubed with blood, and his vest torn. He was greatly excited. He retired to bed, but awoke in a very few minutes.

The woman entered his room at noon in company with the other man. Dolan, in his feverish sleep, had thrown the pillow on the floor, and his head lay between Mr. Noe's gold watch and the pocket book. Startled by his fright, the woman threw herself upon him and exclaimed, "Oh! John, John, you have killed some one."

Dolan sprang out of bed and implored them to say nothing. He gave the woman five dollars and fifty cents, taken from Mr. Noe, to buy him a shirt. On her return, his accomplice had got rid of the bloody garment.

HERRING

BACKS DOWN.

Very late dispatches from Saratoga, New York, brings the gratifying tidings of a deliberate attempt on the part of S. C. HERRING to break up a sale that HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK COMPANY had effected.

See Letters, as follows:

OFFICE OF HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK CO.,
NEW YORK, July 25, 1875.

A. PROSEUS, ESQ.:

Sir—We are informed that Mr. Silas C. Herring is at Saratoga, and that he is accompanied by one Graves, an agent of the firm of Herring & Co., and that both of them have proclaimed and asserted their ability to inject powder into any Safe of our manufacture.

We have shipped to the "Saratoga Savings Bank" a fire-proof Safe with inside Banker's Chest. It is of the kind and character such as we keep at all times in stock, and was in store at the time the order was received, and we shipped it soon thereafter.

IF OUR WORK IS NOT BOTH POWDER-PROOF AND BURGLAR-PROOF, WE DESIRE TO KNOW IT.

We think it greatly to our interest to have the Safe tested; therefore you will please go to Saratoga and see that every facility is afforded to Mr. Herring and his agent, Graves, or to any other man or set of men, to test the Safe with every appliance they can bring to bear upon it.

Let them have a full and fair and lengthy a trial as shall either open the Safe, or cause them to give up in despair.

In order to make the test interesting, you are hereby authorized to place ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN GREENBACKS WITHIN THE BANKER'S CHEST; if and provided. Herring or his agent or any other man or set of men, will deposit Five Hundred Dollars therein at the same time, and sign a written agreement that the door is to be locked and the test proceeded with at once, and that if the Chest is opened within Forty-eight (48) Hours, the money to belong to the successful "cracksmen;" but if they fail it is to belong to us. In which latter event, we instruct you to hand the Five Hundred ($500) Dollars to the Mayor of Saratoga, and request him to distribute it among the charitable institutions of that beautiful village.

HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK CO.

SARATOGA SAVINGS BANK.
No. 110 Broadway,
SARATOGA SPRINGS, August 3, 1875.

HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK COMPANY,
345 and 347 Broadway, New York:

Gentlemen—The Fire and Burglar-Proof Safe ordered from your house, July 16, 1875, was duly forwarded by you and is now in position in our banking-room.

We have inspected it very closely, are well pleased with it in every particular, and think you have given us more than we bargained for.

We expected and intended to have had the Safe subjected to a rigid test as one of your competitors, Mr. Graves, the agent of S. C. HERRING & CO, of your city, with the knowledge and consent of Mr. SILAS C. HERRING, who was present, proclaimed in the presence of the officers of this Bank, their ability and desire to inject powder at the rate of one pound per hour into any Safe of your manufacture

This he proposed to do by and with the use of their GASOMETER, COMPOUND GAS BLOW-PIPE, FORCE-PUMPS, DRILLS, and other BURGLARS IMPLEMENTS, which he took great pleasure, time, and pains to show us, and explain and exhibit the manner of working the same, in the office of Mr M. J. Jennings, one of the purchasing committee.

They also made a written contract with Mr. Jennings to the effect that he would, before accepting the Safe, allow them to test the Burglar Proof part of it with their tools, and in the manner described by them, they agreeing to do the same, and we agreeing to take a Safe from them in case they succeeded in demonstrating the insecurity of yours.

On the arrival of the Safe we notified Mr. HERRING in person of the fact, and of your willingness to have them test it with all the implements in their possession.

MUCH TO OUR SURPRISE AND REGRET, notwithstanding all the assertions which had been made by himself and agent, and the written contract above alluded to, Mr. S. C. HERRING declined to make or to have made any test whatever, and did not give any satisfactory reason therefor.

IT WAS A COMPLETE BACK DOWN.

Wishing you success, and assuring you of our confidence in the Fire and Burglar-Proof qualities of your Safe, we remain, very truly yours,

C. H. HOLDEN, President,
M. J. JENNINGS, Director,

In his Flavoring Extracts the characteristic taste and freshness of the real fruit is preserved and by his process highly concentrated that but a small quantity is required to impart their peculiar flavor to any article in which they may be used. AD EPISODE.

The Death of a Stranger at the Station House.

Away From Home and Friends.

On Saturday night the police found a man on the streets in feeble health, and evidently very ill. He was a stranger and without friends or money, and as there was no hospital in the city, the police carried him to the station house, where he was kindly cared for. He had nothing with him but three carpet sacks. He died yesterday morning twenty minutes after five o'clock. Before death he sent for Mr. Bonnell, the keeper, and asked him to write to the only relatives he had. He gave his name as J. D. Harlan, and stated that his brother, F. G. Harlan, lived at Cherry Creek, Pontotoc county, Mississippi, and his uncle, J. W. Morrow, at Walnut Grove, Hardin county, Tennessee. He stated that he had the consumption for three years, and had been sent from Rock Mills, Alabama, on a wagon to Newnan, where he took the train for Atlanta. He expressed a perfect willingness to die.

Mr. Harlan was between 25 and 30 years of age, and evidently died from consumption. His remains were interred in Oakland Cemetery.

The ladies of the Atlanta Benevolent Society hearing that Mr. Harlan was at the station house, had made arrangements to remove him to the Home yesterday morning.

Temperance Reunion.

A pleasant reunion took place last night at the hall of Atlanta lodge Knights of Jericho. H. K. Shackleford, Superintendent of Cold Water Temples, made an earnest and practical speech. Miss Griffin sang a song that enthused all who heard it. Miss Hardy read an interesting essay on "Moral Heroism." W. G. Whidby, assistant superintendent of Cold Water Temples, made a few remarks. It was resolved to have another reunion next Monday night, and to invite all Knights of Jericho and Good Templars to be present. Messrs. Turner, Dodd, and McDaniel were appointed a committee of arrangements. An interesting time may be expected.

A New Southern Novel.

We are favored by Messrs. Sheldon & Co., the eminent New York publishers, with advance sheets of "Leah Mordecai," a novel by Mrs. Belle Kendrick Abbott, of Atlanta, with the announcement that the work will be issued before the holidays.

A cursory glance at Mrs. Abbott's work causes us to speak in the highest terms of its merits. The scenes and incidents of this exquisite novel are laid in and around historic old Charleston, the heroine being chosen among the wealthy Hebrew families who formed such a prominent characteristic in its ante bellum society. The story runs into the era of the war, and is not unconnected with mournful and heroic tragedy. The literary accomplishments and culture of the authoress are well known to a large circle of friends, and we predict that Leah Mordecai will promptly take its place among the standard fictions of the day.

Howe's Great London Circus.

This circus gave its first performances yesterday afternoon and night. Of the street parade it is sufficient to say that it was very fine, warranting the glowing descriptions of it published by us from other journals. Almost at daylight the people began coming into the city from the country, and the streets along the line of the procession were jammed with masses, till they could hold no more. We never saw more people upon our thoroughfares.

Of the circus performances we lay down these three propositions unhesitatingly, for the benefit of circus goers: 1st. The performances are varied, and the acting good. The animal show is one of the finest we ever saw, the wild beasts are numerous, some of them remarkably trained, and such huge tigers were never before brought to Atlanta. Secondly, the circus comes as near showing everything upon the bills as any we ever saw. And thirdly, we wish to say—and call special attention to it, for it is so unusual—that from the beginning of the performance to the end, there was not one vulgar, indecent or profane word by clown or actor, or if there was, our reporter and all he has met failed to detect it. This is so remarkable that we give it special attention and commendation, as it is the curse of most circuses.

The canvas at both performances was crowded. It would have been difficult to have wedged any more into it. Speaking of the animals, we must mention the elephants. The feat promised upon the bills, and which has occasioned so much doubt, was actually performed, a pyramid of five elephants. Among the tigers is a family boasting three baby fellows, one of which the reporter was induced to caress after much persuasion.

The general management of the circus also deserves commendation. Strict order was kept, and no swearing or boisterous conduct was heard inside or outside of the tent.

There will be two more performances this afternoon and to-night.

A MIDNIGHT VERDICT.

The Trial, Sentence and Suicide of J. T. Heard.

Full Particulars of the Conyers Tragedy.

Justice Runs a Race Against Time—The Fatal Drug—A Killing Grief.

On the 8th and 9th days of last month, September, THE CONSTITUTION contained the particulars of what was alleged to have been an assault with intent to rape two little girls, in a room of the Whitehead house at Conyers, by James T. Heard, a drummer for the drug house of Hunt, Rankin & Lamar of this city, then a transient guest at the said hotel. The issue of the 9th contained a detailed statement from Mr. Heard himself, and both publications will be vividly recalled to the minds of our readers by the circumstances we are about to detail.

On the 8th of September, two days subsequent to the alleged attempted crime, Heard was arraigned before an examining court, waived examination and was bound over to answer before the superior court, giving $2,000 bail in each case. The superior court of Rockdale county was in session last week, and, as stated in THE CONSTITUTION of Sunday, the trial of Heard occurred on Saturday, lasting to so late an hour as to prevent our giving the result.

A PAINFUL STORY.

Upon the arrival of the early train over the Georgia road on Sunday morning, however, the sad intelligence was given out that the trial had terminated adversely, in a measure, to the accused, and that, under the feelings induced by the result, the miserable man had taken his own life. The details were meagre, but spread over the city with the usual rapidity of such news, and soon the story had come to thousands, awakening very general sympathy and interest. Yesterday morning a reporter of THE CONSTITUTION was dispatched by the early train to Conyers, and the results of his labors and investigations are given below:

READY FOR TRIAL.

Mr. Heard appeared in Conyers the early part of the week, as required to do, and secured board at the residence of Mr. S. Mayfield. He was attended by his counsel; Gen. Lucius J. Gartrell, of Atlanta, Judge John S. Hook, of Augusta, and Col A. C. Perry, of Conyers. He is reported to have approached his trial with the utmost confidence in the result proving the fact of his innocence, yet he still remembered the demonstrations of the time when he was first accused and arrested, and is said to have displayed no little fear of the people, whose uncontrolled actions he deemed might prove inimical, if not fatal to him. His landlord reports that he was in great trepidation when not with some one whom he knew to be friendly, and avoided all undue exposure of himself to the public gaze. Yet, he stoutly protested his entire innocence and relied most faithfully upon the sober trial of a court of justice to demonstrate the fact clearly and satisfactorily to the world.

THE CHARGE.

The grand jury, on the 6th inst., returned two true bills against Heard, both identical in all particulars, except the names of the parties. The two little girls whom he was charged with assaulting were Mary A and Minnie T. Chamberlain, the former seven years of age and the latter eleven years. They are the children of Mrs. Louisa Chamberlain, a widow lady, who, with her grown son George, is keeping the Whitehead House, in Conyers. Mr. Heard was arraigned upon the indictment charging him with assaulting Mary A. Chamberlin, the younger child, with the intent to commit a rape.

AFFIDAVIT FOR CONTINUANCE.

The counsel for the defence deemed it necessary and advisable to continue the case to a subsequent term of the court. Heard objected strenuously, and desired to have the trial go on, but upon consultation he agreed to ask for a continuance, and the following affidavit was prepared and filed on Wednesday the 6th:

The State vs. Jas. T Heard. } Assault with intent to commit rape.

The defendant Jas. T. Heard now comes in open court, and moves to continue this case on the following grounds, to wit:

1, The bill of indictment having this day been found and returned into court, the defendant has not had reasonable time and opportunity in which to summon witnesses necessary for his defense and to prepare for the trial.

2 That the offense charged against him is alleged to have been committed on the 6th day of September, 1875, and at that time deponent was cruelly and violently beaten by one of the family, and there was such great excitement in consequence that deponent's life was threatened in a violent and lawless manner, and so great has the excitement been ever since in this community that this deponent has been advised, and from this advice and other causes, has deemed it unsafe for him to visit the county to obtain evidence which he is assured can be obtained here to materially aid him in his defense, and that the local prejudice is so great against him, as he is informed and believes, that he could not safely go to trial. The advice given to this deponent was given by parties in this county, and he was even told it would not be safe for him to come through the county on the train, and that when he returned home to visit his family, he went round by way of Macon, and that this advice was given by parties here, whose names were and are unknown; among them the marshal of the city.

3. That the want of time to procure testimony, and prepare for trial, for the reasons aforesaid, and the principles of justice require that a continuance should be allowed deponent, that he may have time and opportunity to make preparation to meet the grave charge brought against him.

The affidavit concludes in regular form.

The court overruled the motion for a continuance, but informed the counsel that the case would not be called out of its order, which fact would virtually amount to a continuance.

HEARD INSISTS UPON TRIAL.

Mr. Heard afterwards insisted that suspense in the matter was to him worse than death, and demanded of his counsel that they should bring the matter to trial. They reluctantly acquiesced in his urgent demands, and by consent of all parties, the case was advanced and taken up.

SECURING A JURY.

The efforts to secure a jury in the cause were continued through portions of two days, and exhausted all the names in the box except four. Upon the lists in the clerk's possession, THE CONSTITUTION reporter counted sixty-four who had been challenged for cause of bias for or against the prisoner. Others were challenged upon another list not seen, and some were excused. A jury was finally obtained and the trial proceeded with at 10 a. m, on Saturday. The prisoner pleaded "not guilty" upon his arraignment. He was represented by Gartrell Hook and Perry; the state and prosecution by T. B. Cabaniss, solicitor general, McCalla & Floyd, W. W Clark, J. C. Bartow, Wallace P. Reed and Pace.

Geo. T. Chamberlain, brother of the children, was written upon the indictment as prosecutor.

THE TESTIMONY.

Mary A Chamberlain, the little girl named in the indictment, was first put upon the stand and examined as to her competency, which was satisfactorily demonstrated in the affirmative.

The little girl, after stating her age at seven years, then proceeded to tell how she had been in Heard's room; his remark about her pretty little ankle; his taking her upon his lap and feeling her under her clothes. She told in an unmistakable manner the character of handling to which she was subjected. The details it is not proper to print here. Her's was the material testimony. She explained the door's being half open, the lights in the hall, etc., pretty much as is contained in Heard's statement.

Mrs. Chamberlin testified to the little girl's condition when she came and complained of what Heard had done.

Dr. Jones testified to his examination of the girl, and that she had evidently been tampered with.

For the defence, Dr. J. A. Stewart testified to causes which might produce results such as were seen in the case of the little, some of which causes had been present to her during the day.

Mr. Coverly and Mr. Solomon De Wall testified to being in the house and in close proximity to Heard's room but heard nothing and saw nothing unusual until the ladies began crying, and Heard was beaten by George Chamberlin.

The court and jury, after the conclusion of the evidence, listened to the following

STATEMENT OF HEARD:

"On Monday evening I came here (to hotel) after getting through my business in town; I suppose about half an hour before supper; the little girls were playing in front of dining room door, in the hall; they knew me, as I had been there before; when they found out it was me, and knew I was fond of them, I asked where the older one was; one of them came, perhaps both came as soon as they found out who it was; they both came in my room and sat in my lap; after awhile the supper bell rang; I remarked to the little girls I wanted to go to supper; they said after supper they would play "tag" with Mr. Coverly in the hall, and invited me to join them; I said I had writing to do, and after that I would join in the game: after I was through supper I went in my room, the door was wide open, all lighted up; I took a seat in the window, the oldest little girl came in and sat in my lap, her mother called her, she got up and went out quietly. [To rebutt this statement, the girl, Minnie Chambers, was called, and denied it.] I saw no more of her; the children kept playing in the hall and about the door of my room; after awhile the second little girl, Mary Hill, came in the room, and Mary Chamberlain (principal with as) came in also; she called the other one to come and play; she said she was tired; I kept playing with her in an innocent way, tickling her and talking, all agreeable and pleasant as could be; I saw no disposition for her to get down; had she shown any I should have been glad to let her down as I was fatigued, and I did put her down, she went out and came again, and said something about me giving her some present I had promised her from Atlanta.

I called for ink and paper; the boy brought me only half a sheet of paper; I remarked to him I had four letters to write, please get me some more. I kept writing but saw no more of him. After a while Dr Jones came to my room, he walked in quietly; I asked him to take a chair; I offered him a seat, he took it, and after speaking about business, money matters, and other various matters, at length he remarked that Mrs. Chamberlain had requested him to come and ask me to leave the house. I said, "what for?" He said, "she is under the impression that you have been trying to take advantage of her little girl; she is excited about it, and you had better leave." I said, "Dr. there is nothing in the world of it, I will assure you, on the honor of a man; I never thought of such a thing. Be kind enough to say to Mrs. Chamberlain there is nothing of it; if she will see me I will satisfy her that I would not injure or hurt her little girls for nothing in the world; they came into my room, I treated them kindly as I could, and they me." After my persuading him, Dr. Jones went back, and came again to me, saying, "she will not see you; she is excited, and requests you to leave the house; she has sent for her son, and I advise you to leave before he comes." I said, "I won't leave under such a charge as that; I will wait for him, and satisfy him that there is nothing of it, and I will satisfy them all there is nothing in this charge. If I can see Mrs. Chamberlain I can satisfy her in two minutes that it is all wrong; he kept on talking, and after a while we understood that Mr. Chamberlain was come. I said I wanted to see him; he did come down very much excited; he was all in a quiver; it was with great difficulty I could get him to reason with me at all; he asked what I had done; I said nothing; he caught at my throat; I asked him to bring his mother and sister in my room, and I would satisfy them I had done nothing wrong; I thought he was going for that purpose, as he just stepped to the door, and in a short while after returned with Dr. Jones. I saw that he was then terribly excited; I tried to talk to him, but it was no use; he would not listen to reason, but said he was satisfied from what he had heard that I had told a damned lie, and I must leave the house. I said: "I am sorry, and would not like to leave till this matter is investigated." He got me by the collar and jerked me round, and tried to strike me. I asked Dr. Jones not to let him strike me. The doctor did not seem disposed to prevent him, and did not say a word. I thought he was aggravating the matter; for I am satisfied if he had said a word to Mrs. Chamberlain there would have been nothing at all of it; and after the difficulty, I was told by prominent citizens here, that the matter was adjusted, and by one of the best citizens of this place, "I am sorry you did not leave, as a certain lady told my wife that it was all settled." I was then charged with the crime of rape, and that prosecution for that crime * * * [Here the solicitor-general objected to prisoner's statement of matters not connected with the case before the court. Defendant's counsel claims that he has a right to make his own statement. He is making no speech or argument, but speaking of facts only relevant to the issue. The judge says whatever he may think he has a right to state about the facts of case, he has a right to do, but not to give people's opinions about what had occurred.] The prisoner continues. Mrs. Chamberlain said nothing to me. If she had come to my room she would have been satisfied that no one could take greater care, or would protect her children more than I did. I am sorry if the child was hurt. I am confident she was not hurt by me. I think she is mistaken as to how she was hurt, and if at all it was some other way than by me. I don't think the girl would make a false statement knowingly, but she never made any complaint while with me. She came and sat on my lap twice. She got down and I asked her to run to her mamma. She said "I will be back directly." I then called for ink and paper. When Dr. Jones came, I tried to satisfy him the best I could that I had not tried to take advantage of the little girl, etc. [Repeating matters already stated.] I will give a plain statement of the facts. I heard that I was charged with committing a rape, I had Dr. Stewart to make examination of my person, and he was satisfied that it could not be true, and the next morning, as Col Perry here will tell you, I insisted on calling a board of physicians to have the little girl examined. He promised to have it done. I wanted to send a dispatch for my counsel in Atlanta. He said he would see that that was done, and he told me that a board of physicians was summoned. I heard no more of that for some time, although the charge of rape was still hanging over me. When my counsel came, I again moved to have the board of physicians and the examination. The first charge against me was withdrawn, and this present charge brought against me. There was no assault made. If there had been, would not an alarm have been given? [By the judge: Don't argue the case.] Prisoner resumes: The girl came twice in the room. I treated her as well as her father would. I was as much surprised as any of you would be at the charge. [Note—here the speaker became carried away by his feelings, and continued.] I have been raised by a pious old mother, and have sisters. [The judge: You must not go into that.] Gentlemen, I leave it with you.

After the prisoner had made his statement there were three witnesses introduced to controvert several of his statements.

THE ARGUMENTS.

The prosecution opened the arguments, with a speech by Col. W. W. Clark. He was followed by Judge Hook for the defense, and he by Gen. Gartrell, who, it is generally conceded, made one of the ablest defences of his life, and eloquently presented the case for Mr. Heard. The prosecution closed with the speech of Judge Floyd. The arguments were concluded about 5 p. m.

The court room was crowded with spectators, and the greatest interest was manifested by the public throughout the whole trial. Heard bore himself well, being calm and hopeful during the greater part of the day, but becoming despondent as the night wore on.

THE CHARGE

of the court covered seven pages of legal cap paper, and was a full exposition of the necessary facts to constitute the crime and the evidence belonging thereto. The jury received the papers at nearly six o'clock and retired to consider of their verdict. They returned once for instructions and once for another matter (fully detailed in Col. Perry's statement attached) and brought in some four or five minutes before midnight. It was read by Colonel Clarke, solicitor general pro tem, as follows:

"WE, THE JURY, FIND THE DEFENDANT GUILTY OF AN ASSAULT AND RECOMMEND TO MERCY.

"J.M. SUMMERS,
"FOREMAN."

This verdict was listened to anxiously by the defendant, and by-standers say was received by him with evident signs of dismay, as though wholly unexpected. But he seemed to suppress any exhibition of emotion and to struggle for calmness and fortitude.

THE SENTENCE

of the court was pronounced almost immediately after and the sheriff took charge of the prisoner. The clock struck midnight as sentence was pronounced and the court at once thereafter adjourned.

The sentence was in these words:

The State vs. James T. Heard. } Assault with intent to rape, in Rockdale Superior Court, and a verdict of guilty of an assault.

October Term, 1875.

It is therefore ordered that the defendant pay a fine of one thousand dollars and all costs of prosecution, and be confined in the common jail of Rockdale county for and during the period of six months and then be discharged.

JOHN I. HALL,
Judge S. C. F. C.

The facts connected with this last scene and the tragic event following the reporter leaves to be told in the statements made to him by Col. A. C. Perry and Sheriff Whitehead, both of which follow:

COL. PERRY'S STATEMENT.

About half after 11 o'clock on Saturday night, the bailiff in charge of the jury came to Judge Hall's room, (at the Whitehead House,) in which Gen. Gartrell, Judge Hook and myself were, and stated to the judge that the jury could not agree. The judge told the bailiff that he had no right to bring any report from the jury. The judge said he would go to the court room, and asked us if we would go with him, which we did. The judge directed the bailiff to bring the jury out, which was done and the judge asked them what was the trouble, whether it was a question of law or of fact? The foreman, Capt. James M. Summers, replied that it was partly both. The counsel for defense objected to the judge's giving the jury any instructions, as the jury had not requested any. The court then asked the jury if they wished any instructions, and if so, upon what point? The foreman said he desired instructions upon the law of assault. Others of the jury said the same thing, reluctantly. Counsel for the defence still objected. The court went on and charged the law upon assault. He then told the jury that it was 25 minutes to 12 o'clock midnight, and asked them if they thought they had time to agree before twelve o'clock, as he could not receive a verdict after that hour. One of the jury, Mr. Smith, took out his watch, said he was with the court time, and that they (the jury) had time to make up their verdict before midnight. The jury returned to their room, and stayed there a few minutes. The bailiff brought some other report out, and the judge called the jury in again and told them not to send him any report through the bailiff. They again returned to their room. About four or five minutes before twelve o'clock they agreed upon a verdict, and came into the jury box. Gen. Gartrell was out in the lobby and called me; he told me we must have the jury polled, and to tell Judge Hook to have it done. I said, yes, by all means, and told the Judge that we must do so. The court asked us if we waived the call of the jury. Judge Hook replied that we did. I told him that was wrong, but he said the poll came after the waiver. The court instructed the solicitor general pro tem., Col. Clarke, to receive the verdict, and it was received and read. Judge Hook arose and asked that the jury be polled. The court refused the request because we had made a waiver of the call. Judge Hook replied that the poll came after the waiver, and that such was the decision of the supreme Court. Judge Hook took his seat, and General Gartrell arose and said the same, and was addressing the court when the judge ordered the prisoner to stand up—did not ask him if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him, but proceeded immediately to pass sentence, and while doing so, the clock struck twelve. Court immediately adjourned. We then asked the judge to pass an order allowing us time to prepare a motion for a new trial. The court said it would give us time. The court told the sheriff that the prisoner was in his charge. The solicitor told him the same, and said he desired him to understand it. The sheriff carried the prisoner out of court, and I suppose to the private boarding house to get his baggage and put him into jail. The judge and counsel for defendant then went to the hotel. Counsel, on consultation, sent myself to the judge's room to know what kind of an order he would let us take in the case. I approached the judge and asked if we should take an order then, or wait until next (this) week; that it was Sunday and the order taken then would be void, but we could take one then and one this week. He said that I must be judge in the matter. I returned to Gen. Gartrell and Judge Hook who were in the hall of the hotel. Judge Hook was in the act of leaving for Augusta, and said he could not stay. I said, judge you must stay; our client is in a critical condition and we must do something for him. He replied that if I said so, he would stay, and began to take off his coat. Gen. Gartrell said, go on, judge, Perry and I will attend to that, and the judge left on the train. We went to Gen. G.'s room and prepared a blank order, allowing us time to prepare a motion for arrest of judgment and new trial. We presented it to the judge who read it and said he would make some changes in it. He then instructed the general what kind of an order to draw, but next said he would draw the order himself. In the meantime, I told him that our client was in jail, and that he was under $4,000 bonds, and that we had purged the security, who had sworn that he was worth the bond over and above his homestead and all his indebtedness. The judge appeared to be surprised at the prisoner being in jail, and directed me to see the sheriff and have Mr Heard brought to his (the judge's) room. I did so. When Heard came into the judge's room, the judge told him there had been a mistake; that he didn't intend him (H.) to go to jail; that counsel were preparing to move for a new trial, which was a supersedeas of the sentence until the motion was heard. The prisoner thanked him, and asked Gen. G. and myself to go with him to his room. I told him we would go in a few minutes—as soon as we got the order, and for him to remain. His reply was that he had something like vertigo and must go. We told him to go with the sheriff and we would be there in a few minutes. The judge prepared the order (appended below,) and after getting it we remained in the judge's room some 15 minutes. Gen. G. and I then went to see Heard, at Mr. S. Mayfield's house, where he was boarding. There was a light in his room. I called to him several times but got no answer. I remarked to Gen. Gartrell that I was afraid that he (Heard) was gone—runaway. Gen. G.'s reply was, "Perry, he is dead!" By this time, Mr. Mayfield had come to the door. We told him we wished to see Mr. Heard at the door, as we had no time to stay. He went to Heard's room, up stairs, and called us to come up there, as the man was either drunk or dead. We went up immediately. I walked into the room and took him by the hands and found that he was dying. I then went for a physician, who came in a few minutes and gave it as his opinion that Heard had taken poison—morphine. He said there was no possible chance for his recovery. I informed the judge of the fact, and he went up and remained in the room for an hour or two, until all of us were satisfied that he would soon die. He died about 4 o'clock. When Heard left the judge's room one of us remarked that he looked like a crazy man, and I said he would not live six days.

When urging for a trial he protested that he was innocent of the crime and believed the jury would so find; said if they did he would be the happiest man on earth. Said he could never see his mother, wife and sisters until the trial was ended and that suspense or continuance of the case was worse than death! He said that he would go to trial trusting to the prayer of his mother.

I found his clothes hung up in his room, his hat on the mantel, and he was lying on the bed with his hands crossed, as though he had purposely laid himself out. In his pocket-book were a $5 note, a $10 note, and fifteen cents in nickles. Also, this paper of morphine (showing it) which the doctor says contained enough to kill half a dozen men.

The following is the

granted to us at the time mentioned above:

The State vs. James T. Heard } Assault with intent to commit a rape and verdict of guilty of an assault,

October 10, 1875, and sentence.

The verdict in the above stated case was returned and received within 5 minutes of 12 o'clock on Saturday night, the 9th day of October. The verdict was read and while the clock was striking 12 the court adjourned immediately on finishing reading the sentence. Counsel asked for time to file a motion for a new trial, but as 12 o'clock had arrived I had to refuse time. Counsel then asked for time to take an order allowing them to file a motion in vacation. This I declined to do for the same reason, but directed the order to be taken after adjournment as it was impossible to take any steps towards preparing a motion before court adjourned, or even take an order giving time. It is therefore ordered that thirty days from this date be allowed defendant's counsel in which to prepare, perfect and file in the clerk's office a motion for new trial and the motion be heard and determined. It is therefore ordered that this order be placed upon the minutes of Rockdale Superior Court.

JOHN I HALL,
Judge Superior Court Flint Circuit.

Oct. 11th, 1875.

It will be seen that this order is dated for Monday, although issued on Sunday morning shortly after one o'clock. It has not been, and will not be filed now or at all.

Sheriff Whitehead's Statement.

The reporter of THE CONSTITUTION received the following statement from the lips of Sheriff Whitehead, who is jailor of the county:

"The jury came out of the room after 11 o'clock and wanted some instructions. The judge ordered me to go and bring Heard down from his room. I went and found him upon his bed, apparently asleep. I called him and he asked what I wanted. I said I wanted him to come and go down to the court house. He asked what the jury had done. I replied that they had done nothing yet, but wanted instructions upon the law of assault, and that I expected they would so find him guilty of assault. He remarked: You will let me come back to my room before you take me to jail, if I must go? I said I supposed so. He insisted half a dozen times that I should promise to let him come back to his room. I said I had no objections. We came to the court-house then, he walking with his arm locked in mine. As we came up the steps, I was ahead of him, but some one stepped upon the stairs behind him, when he shot past me rapidly and got ahead, as though afraid some one was after him. When the jury brought in their verdict, and Judge Hall had sentenced him, Col Clark said to me that the prisoner was in my charge. I ordered two bailiffs to take charge of him. He then insisted upon my going with him to his room. I said it was late, and I thought that was unnecessary, and it might be improper. General Gartrell said there was nothing improper in it and requested me to go with Heard. We went, he locking arms with the two bailiffs, Bentley and Mitchell, and I walking behind. When we got to his room he said: Captain you will give me time to get ready? I said yes, but to be in as big a hurry as he could. He took something from his valise which none of us noticed and walked to the water stand. He took just one swallow from the goblet, then he put in more water and took it, and I am now fully satisfied that was when he took the poison. Soon he got his hat and said he was. He borrowed two quilts and a pillow at the boarding house and we then come down and went into the jail. He made down a bed and asked me for another quilt. I went to get a double shawl I had, and while in the house Mr. Perry called me two or three times. When I went out he said Judge Hall wanted to see me in his room in the hotel. I went over and the judge said he didn't intend for me to imprison that man. I remarked that the gentleman who acted as solicitor-general turned him over to me, and I thought I was only doing my duty. He said he heard what Col. Clark said, and should have explained to me; that he (Hall) was the one who should have told me what to do. He told me to bring Heard there. I went to the jail and told Heard to put on his clothes, that Judge Hall said it was not his intention to put him in jail, as his counsel were making motion for a new trial. We went to the room and the judge told him the same thing. We had been sitting there but a few minutes when George Chamberlain come to the door and said "I want that man taken out of here!" Judge Hall said: "Mr. Chamberlain, I sent for this man to come to my room; it is my room; I pay for it and I want him here." Chamberlain insisted that Heard should leave and Gen. Gartrell said Judge Hall had called him there. Judge Hall said: "Mr. Camberlain, you are acting very imprudently, very imprudently, indeed!" shaking his finger at George. The judge then sent to know if Mrs. C. had retired; if not, he wished to see her in the hallway.

I said to Gen. G that Mr. Heard and I would go to Heard's room. The General said all right—that he and Perry would be there before the train passed. Heard and I walked out, and as we went along Heard was staggering and would fall up against me and then pull off from me. I asked him in a joking way, "Heard, are you drunk?" He said, "No. I have the vertigo, and when a spell comes over me I can't walk straight." When we got to the house, I went inside the gate with him. I asked him if I could do anything for him; if he wanted a letter written to his wife or mother about how the case stood, but he said "No." I asked him if he was going on the up train to Atlanta with Gen. Gartrell. He said, "Yes. I believe I will go to Atlanta." At the door, however, he turned and said, "I shall remain here tomorrow, and not go to Atlanta." He thanked me for kindness to him, and I bid him good night. I saw him afterwards in his room dying. I have known Heard three or four years, and he stopped with me during that time, at the hotel and I never saw anything wrong with him in my life.

THE DEAD MAN

was properly cared for and his remains enclosed in a fine coffin. There was no lack of help offered, and quite a number of the young men of the town sat up with the corpse Sunday night, and assisted in seeing it aboard the train to Augusta, to which point it was sent, his family residing there.

The theories of the cause of the suicide are numerous as are the opinions concerning the case, but a very general feeling of sympathy and regret was found prevailing at Conyers. Although the accused was full of fear lest the people should do him violent harm, his counsel assure us that no such temper was visible, and they do not believe that any grounds existed for the fear.

SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCES.

During Gen. Gartrell's speech for the defence it is stated that he quoted the following, being the 21st verse of the 22nd chapter of Exodus:

"Thou shalt neither vex a stranger, nor oppress him; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt."

Judge Floyd, for the state, following General Gartrell, in his address, took up the quotation and supplemented it with the 22d, 23d and 24th verses, as follows:

"22. Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

"23. If thou afflict them in any wise, and they cry at all unto me, I will surely hear their cry;

"24. And my wrath shall wax hot, and I will kill you with the sword; and your wives shall be widows, and your children fatherless."

The tragic ending of Heard's life, coming in such quick succession upon these matters, recalled the above quotations vividly to the minds of all who heard them, as the girls upon whom it was alleged the attempt was made are fatherless, and Heard leaves a living wife and two interesting children, thus widowed and orphaned.

THE SUICIDES.

In the house where Heard died, only a few months ago the son of Mr. Mayfield died also, after having fired a ball into his brain, while standing in the public street. His purpose, too was self destruction. Heard of his thoughts or desire behind him. He had received most affectionate and faithful letters from his wife every day during the week, but left no word, message or letter for her or for his mother.

Thus has ended the brief but terrible story.

—We are pleased to learn that Prof. Schoeller and his music class, of Dalton Female College, are to be invited soon to give a concert here for a benevolent object. We can assure our readers that they will have a rich treat.

—All the towns from Covington up to Decatur, were depopulated yesterday. Conductor Boyd of the accommodation train had to tunnel his way through the passengers. The influx of travel was caused by a sudden desire of the ladies to do a little shopping, and of the gentlemen to "see a man on business." But somehow they met at the London circus.

Revenue Seizure at Big Shanty.

Saturday considerable excitement prevailed at Big Shanty in consequence of the seizure of a small quantity of cigars and cheroots by a Mr C. T. Warren, claiming to be a revenue official of some sort. Mr. F. M. Lacey, the proprietor of the hotel, keeps a few cigars for sale for which he has a regular license. Mr. Warren called for the license, but Mr. Lacey being absent at Marietta, and Mrs. Lacey, who is in ill-health, Mrs Garrett, a daughter of Mr. Lacey, proffered to look it up. Warren seized the cigars and cheroots under color of the following printed words on the license stamp: "Severe penalties are imposed for neglect or refusal to keep this stamp conspicuously in your establishment or place of business." The license stamp was found up stairs. The people were highly incensed at the conduct of Warren under the circumstances, and the attention of the United States authorities will be called to this affair. Mr. Lacey is highly respected by all who know him.

Organization of the Court of Inquiry.

Admission Refused to a Representative of The Constitution.

Investigation to be Resumed this Afternoon.

The court of inquiry ordered by his Excellency the Governor for the investigation of the charges preferred against Lieutenant J. G. Scutchins, of the Fulton Blues, assembled yesterday morning at ten o'clock. The room used by the president of the senate when that body was in session, was set apart for the use of the court, and before the hour had arrived the doorway was crowded with groups of the members of our several companies, all eagerly discussing the issues about to be tried.

A DIGNIFIED BODY.

In accordance with the orders from headquarters, and the United States army regulations, the members of the court made their appearance in full uniform and with their side arms. These gentlemen are Lieutenant R. J. Lowry, Governor's Guards, president; Lieut. Howard Van Epps, Governor's Guard, judge advocate; Lieut. Patterson, Cadets, and Lieut Dabney, Fulton Blues, sergeants, and several members of the Governor's Guards, were detailed for duty as guards, and were stationed at the door leading to the court room. The guard discharged their duty faithfully, and refused admittance to every one, not even excepting the representatives of the Press. Everything was conducted in accordance with the strict letter of military law. The utmost silence prevailed in the court chamber, and all that transpired was reduced to writing. We imagine that the court must have been a very imposing tribunal, and regret that we did not have an opportunity of seeing it in session. Indeed, no civilian was present except Col. S. B. Spencer, who was permitted to be present as the attorney for the accused.

A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE CONSTITUTION REFUSED ADMITTANCE.

A reporter of the CONSTITUTION, although aware of the order requiring strict privacy, determined nevertheless to make an effort to procure admittance. The following communication was accordingly presented in person at the executive department:

OFFICE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION,
ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 11, 1875.

MAJ. J. W. WARREN, Secretary Executive Department.—Dear Sir: As the court of inquiry to be convened this day at ten o'clock a. m. is to be strictly private, may I ask if the rule will not be so relaxed as to admit a reporter of the CONSTITUTION?

Very respectfully,
HOWELL C. JACKSON.

This application was duly forwarded to the governor and returned with the following endorsement:

"Referred to the court of inquiry as a matter within their discretion.

"By order of the governor,
"J. W. WARREN,
"Sec'y ex. department."

The notice was then sent into the court, who after some time, probably spent in discussing the merits of the application endorsed upon it: "Proceedings strictly private. No one but court, and those connected, will be allowed to be present.

"ROBERT J. LOWRY, President."

WHAT WAS DONE YESTERDAY.

The court adjourned about 12 o'clock, until 5 o'clock this afternoon, and an effort was made to obtain an insight into what had been done by interviewing the members. They were very reticent, and very little was learned. We are safe, however in saying, that very little if any business was done beyond perfecting the organization. The investigation of the charges will be formally commenced this afternoon, and will be continued from day to day until completed. The taking of testimony is to be at once commenced, and several of the officers and members have been summoned to appear this afternoon. The court will sit from five to eight. To-day a sergeant and detachment from the Blues will furnish the guard.

STATE TO PAY $40 OR $50 A DAY.

During yesterday afternoon, the reporter, in conversation with a well known officer of the battalion, asked him what the expense to the state of Georgia would be on account of this trial. The reply was that the expenses of the court would probably be $40 or $50 a day, and that it will require about a week to complete the case—the court sitting each day from five to eight o'clock P. M.

THE COTTON FACTORY.

Some Facts Concerning It—An Interesting Addendum.

Learning yesterday that H. I Kimball, president of the Atlanta Cotton Factory, had returned from the east, a reporter of THE CONSTITUTION dropped in to hear what he had to report concerning the factory's interests. He said that he had made an extended trip through New England and found all the mills there busy, doing all they could and running to their full extent. At Lowell the mills are increasing their capacity. There is scarcely a mill that is not adding new machinery. The manufacturers of the north admit that wherever we can establish a factory in the south. As fast as we build mills they must go to other work. The whole business community, merchants, bankers and manufacturers, are entertaining the best of feelings towards the south. They talked a good deal about the 17th of June and the good time they had at the Bunker Hill Centennial. They are becoming better satisfied with the south, and the south is getting into better credit there. There has been almost an entire reaction in feeling, and no section is looked on with more favor than the south.

In talking about the factory to them I found no one who doubted

ITS ENTIRE SUCCESS.

They know what they have done and are doing, and they all know that we can whip them out when we go about it in good solid earnest.

I can contract for machinery now at from 25 to forty per cent. below the cost in 1870. It can't go any lower, because the shops are now doing better, on account of the mills supplanting their old with new machinery. About our factory here I feel exceedingly encouraged and certain of its absolute success. We should have the mill under roof before Christmas and the spindles running early next spring, say 10,000 of them, at least. The machinery will cost about $125,000, coming from Lowell or Whitensville.

AN ADDENDUM.

Upon the subject of the recent "Tennessee car company" matter, Mr Kimball said: "My answer to your question is this: I have no statements or explanations to make. It is quite probable that all matters connected with that will come under investigation where all will tell their stories under oath and when that time comes I will be prepared, to make any statement. Until that time the public must take what I have heretofore said upon these subjects."

REV. DR. LEFTWICH.

He Declines the Call and Remains With his People.

The Central Presbyterian church was crowded Sunday morning to hear a sermon from the pastor, Rev Dr. Leftwich. The occasion was a most solemn one, and the congregation were thrilled by the announcement that this favorite divine would remain with his people. Our reporter had an abstract of the sermon for this issue, but it is crowded out and will appear to-morrow.

Personal Paragraphs.

—I. T. Banks, the original "C. O. D." man, is in the city.

—B. W. Wrenn left for Chicago yesterday evening.

—W. Roscoe Thornton, of Palmetto, is in the city.

—W. G. Whidby has been appointed Assistant Superintendent of Cold Water Temples for the State

—C. D McCutchen, Jr., is one of the most popular young men of Dalton, and a great favorite with the ladies.

—Mr R. J. Woods, brother of Wm. Henry Woods of Savannah, is to put up and operate an extensive flouring mill in the former city. This will have a tendency to make Eufaula more lively in future.

—Dr. J. C. C Blackburn, of Barnesville, is in the city. We were pleased to see him in fine health. He is always welcomed to the Gate City, for a more genial or clever gentleman does not exist.

—Our city a few days since had a visit from Mr. C. A. Vosburgh, general manager of the Singer Company, for the states of Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida. He expressed himself in admiring terms of the constant progress of Atlanta.

—Col. A. M. Speights, of the Greenville. S. C., News, is here, talking of the grand fair coming off there on the 20th. Our merchants are pushing their trade largely in that direction, and the News will be an excellent medium to make the acquaintance of those people.

—W. T. Revell, of the Greenville Vindicator, is in the city. The Vindicator is a flourishing sheet, published in a county that trades almost entirely with Atlanta. Our merchants would do well to send their advertisements by Col. Revell for his paper, if they would revil in Merriwether's trade. He is a clever fellow anyway.

Mr. John Green, a planter near Green's Cut, Burke county, was thrown from a broken step and fractured one arm and several fingers of the other hand. Cotton in this county turns out very short.

Obituary.

McGUIRE—Died, at his residence, 24th September, near Carrollton, Georgia, Mr. G. M. McGuire, in the 55th year of his age. Deceased had been a member of the M. E. Church, South, twenty-six years, and for fourteen of these he was an active, effective class leader. Very many, no doubt, will remember his zeal for the Master about Dahlonega and Cumming. War came and the souls of men were tried. After many hardships on the tented field, and the dire end came, he returned to his home to find his fortune gone, and the ease and comfort procured by honest toil for his family fled as a "morning dream." For a time he yielded to the tempter's power and his love grew cold. The writer of this brief notice had frequently conversed with the deceased upon religious subjects and found him ever interested and towards the close of his life he again felt the warming love of the Redeemer. He was of a quiet disposition, unobtrusive habit, patient to a remarkable degree and attentive to business. In his last moments he exhibited much fortitude, though the surrounding circumstances were exceedingly sad. When pain was excruciating and there was no rest for 43 long hours, he remarked to the writer that "he did not know it was necessary that one should suffer so much in order to die." But the skill of his kind physician failed, and the dreaded hour drew near. The family assembled for prayer. The wife and children knelt around the bed of the dying husband and father—it was a solemn hour. For a time the dying man hushed his groans and as intercession went up for himself and family he audibly and forcibly said "Amen" again and again. The gloom of midnight had fallen like a pall upon all; the spirit still lingered. The stillness of the hour and the hurried, stentorous breathing, impressed every heart with the awfulness of the scene. About half-past two, on the morning of the 24th, he was asked, 'Are you any better?' "Yes, yes," was the reply, and in fifteen minutes was no more. Thus passed away a useful citizen, an affectionate father and husband, and a believer in Jesus.

A FRIEND.
